

Bartlit Beck Defeats Antitrust Challenge to Pratt & Whitney

Chromalloy v. United Technologies (1996)

Fred Bartlit, Don Scott and Mark Levine defended United Technologies in this Texas state court antitrust action in which a company that handled repairs of aircraft engines alleged UT attempted to monopolize the engine repair market. Plaintiff Chromalloy is reported to have spent $50 million pursuing this case but came up short when the jury awarded no damages even though finding an attempted monopolization.
