

1 NEVIN M. GEWERTZ
nevin.gewertz@bartlit-beck.com
2 ABBY M. MOLLEN
abby.mollen@bartlit-beck.com
3 BARTLIT BECK HERMAN PALENCHAR
& SCOTT LLP
4 54 West Hubbard Street, Suite 300
5 Chicago, IL 60654
6 Telephone: (312) 494-4400
7 Facsimile: (312) 494-4440
8 Attorneys for AMICI CURIAE
9 CONSTITUTIONAL LAW SCHOLARS

10 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
11 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
12 SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

13
14 COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA,

15 Plaintiff,

16 v.

17 DONALD J. TRUMP, President of the United States of America, JOHN F.
18 KELLY, in his official capacity as
Secretary of the United States Department
19 of Homeland Security, JEFFERSON B.
SESSIONS, in his official capacity as
20 Attorney General of the United States,
JOHN MICHAEL "MICK"
21 MULVANEY, in his official capacity as
Director of the Office of Management and
22 Budget, and DOES 1-50,

23 Defendants.
24
25
26
27
28

Case No. 3:17-cv-00574-WHO

NOTICE OF MOTION AND ADMINISTRATIVE MOTION OF
CONSTITUTIONAL LAW SCHOLARS
FOR LEAVE TO FILE AN *AMICUS
CURIAE* BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Date: April 5, 2017
Time: 2:00 pm
Dep't: Courtroom 2
Judge: Hon. William H. Orrick

Date Filed: March 22, 2017

Trial Date: Not yet set

1 TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT Raquel Aldana, Michelle Wilde Anderson, Hadar
3 Aviram, W. David Ball, Lenni B. Benson, Gabriel J. Chin, Ingrid V. Eagly, William H.D.
4 Fernholz, Katherine J. Florey, Gerald E. Frug, Bill Ong Hing, Alison L. LaCroix, Sanford
5 V. Levinson, Karl Manheim, Maya Manian, Hiroshi Motomura, James Gray Pope, Darien
6 Shanske, Fred Smith, Jr., Ilya Somin, Elissa Steglich, Rose Cuison-Villazor, Michael
7 Vitiello, Alexander “Sasha” Volokh, Keith Whittington, Michael J. Wishnie, and Ernest
8 Young hereby move the Court for leave to file an amicus brief in the above-captioned case
9 in support of Plaintiff’s motion for preliminary injunction. Defendants take no position on 10 the request. A copy of the proposed amicus brief is appended as an exhibit to this motion.

11 I. STANDARD FOR LEAVE TO FILE BRIEF OF AMICI CURIAE

12 The Court has indicated a willingness to consider amicus briefs in this case. See
13 D.I. 40 (Order Regarding Amicus Briefs). The Court has broad discretion to permit third
14 parties to participate in an action as amici curiae. Gerritsen v. de la Madrid Hurtado, 819
15 F.2d 1511, 1514 n.3 (9th Cir. 1987); Woodfin Suite Hotels, LLC v. City of Emeryville, No.
16 C 06-1254 SBA, 2007 WL 81911, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 9, 2007). Participation of amici
17 curiae may be particularly appropriate where legal issues in a case have potential
18 ramifications beyond the parties directly involved or where amici can offer a unique
19 perspective to aid the Court. Sonoma Falls Dev., LLC v. Nev. Gold & Casinos, Inc., 272 F.
20 Supp. 2d 919, 925 (N.D. Cal. 2003).

21 II. STATEMENT OF IDENTITY OF AMICI CURIAE

22 Amici are law professors and scholars of constitutional law, including those who 23 have taught, written, and spoken on the topics of Federalism, the Federal Government’s 24 spending power, and the Tenth Amendment. Amici wish to offer their expertise regarding 25 the principles that inform whether Executive Order No. 13,768, 82 Fed. Reg. 8799 (Jan.
26 25, 2017) (the “Executive Order” or the “Order”) complies with constitutional limits on the 27 Federal Government’s ability to compel State and local Governments to adopt or 28 administer federal law.

1 Amici are (all institutional affiliations are for identification purposes only):

- 2 • Raquel Aldana, McGeorge School of Law, University of the Pacific
- 3 • Michelle Wilde Anderson, Stanford Law School
- 4 • Hadar Aviram, University of California Hastings College of the Law
- 5 • W. David Ball, Santa Clara School of Law
- 6 • Lenni B. Benson, New York Law School
- 7 • Gabriel J. Chin, University of California, Davis School of Law
- 8 • Ingrid V. Eagly, University of California Los Angeles School of Law
- 9 • William H.D. Fernholz, University of California Berkeley School of Law
- 10 • Katherine J. Florey, University of California Davis School of Law
- 11 • Gerald E. Frug, Harvard Law School
- 12 • Bill Ong Hing, University of San Francisco School of Law
- 13 • Alison L. LaCroix, University of Chicago Law School
- 14 • Sanford V. Levinson, University of Texas School of Law
- 15 • Karl Manheim, Loyola Law School, Los Angeles
- 16 • Maya Manian, University of San Francisco School of Law
- 17 • Hiroshi Motomura, University of California Los Angeles School of Law
- 18 • James Gray Pope, Rutgers Law School
- 19 • Darien Shanske, University of California Davis School of Law
- 20 • Fred Smith, Jr., University of California Berkeley School of Law
- 21 • Ilya Somin, George Mason University, Antonin Scalia Law School
- 22 • Elissa Steglich, University of Texas School of Law
- 23 • Rose Cuison-Villazor, University of California Davis School of Law
- 24 • Michael Vitiello, McGeorge School of Law, University of the Pacific
- 25 • Alexander “Sasha” Volokh, Emory University School of Law
- 26 • Keith Whittington, Princeton University
- 27 • Michael J. Wishnie, Yale Law School
- 28 • Ernest Young, Duke University School of Law

1 III. AMICI CURIAE’S EXPERTISE WILL BENEFIT THIS COURT

2 Due to the constitutional law and Federalism issues presented by the Executive
3 Order, Amici believe that their expertise will benefit the Court. In particular, Amici wish
4 to offer their expertise regarding the Supreme Court’s jurisprudence on the limits of the 5 Federal Government’s authority to force State and local governments to administer federal 6 law. Amici believe the Executive Order may implicate that jurisprudence. Amici also 7 believe, given the significance of the constitutional values at stake, that it is essential that
8 questions concerning the Federal Government’s authority be thoroughly understood and 9 correctly resolved. Finally, Amici believe that their expertise may be of particular use to 10 the Court given the role Federalism plays as a structural protection of individual liberty
11 and political accountability and thus, by extension, the potential ramifications that the 12 issues before the Court may have beyond the parties to the cases.

13 Accordingly, Amici respectfully offer their analysis of these issues to assist the 14 Court in its deliberations.

15 CONCLUSION

16 For the foregoing reasons, the above-listed amici respectfully request this Court’s
17 leave to submit the attached Amicus Curiae brief.

18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 March 22, 2017

BARTLIT BECK HERMAN PALENCHAR
& SCOTT LLP

2

3

By: /s/ Nevin M. Gewertz

4

Nevin M. Gewertz*

5

Abby M. Mollen*

6

Attorneys for Amici Curiae

7

Constitutional Law Scholars

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

---

26 * Admitted to practice in the United States District Court for the Northern District of 27 Illinois. See D.I. 40 (Order Regarding Amicus Briefs) (waiving the pro hac vice 28 requirements of Northern District of California Local Rule 11-3 for attorneys admitted to practice and in good standing in any United States District Court).

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on March 22, 2017, a copy of the foregoing Notice of Motion and Administrative Motion of Constitutional Law Scholars for Leave to File an Amicus Curiae Brief in Support of Plaintiff’s Motion for Preliminary Injunction, the Amicus Curiae Brief of Constitutional Law Scholars in Support of Plaintiff’s Motion for a Preliminary Injunction, and a Proposed Order were filed pursuant to the Court’s electronic filing procedures using CM/ECF.

/s/ Nevin M. Gewertz

Nevin M. Gewertz

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 NEVIN M. GEWERTZ
 nevin.gewertz@bartlit-beck.com
 2 ABBY M. MOLLEN
 abby.mollen@bartlit-beck.com
 3 BARTLIT BECK HERMAN PALENCHAR
 & SCOTT LLP
 4 54 West Hubbard Street, Suite 300
 Chicago, IL 60654
 5 Telephone: (312) 494-4400
 Facsimile: (312) 494-4440
 6
 Attorneys for AMICI CURIAE
 7 CONSTITUTIONAL LAW SCHOLARS

8
 9 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
 10 SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

11
 12
 13 COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA,
 14
 Plaintiff,
 15
 v.
 16 DONALD J. TRUMP, President of the United States of America, JOHN F. KELLY, in his 17 official capacity as Secretary of the United States Department of Homeland Security,
 18 JEFFERSON B. SESSIONS, in his official capacity as Attorney General of the United States, JOHN MICHAEL "MICK"
 19 MULVANEY, in his official capacity as
 Director of the Office of Management and
 20 Budget, and DOES 1-50,
 21
 Defendants.

Case No. 3:17-cv-00574-WHO

BRIEF OF AMICI CURIAE
 CONSTITUTIONAL LAW SCHOLARS IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Date: April 5, 2017
 Time: 2:00 pm
 Dep't: Courtroom 2
 Judge: Hon. William H. Orrick

Date Filed: March 22, 2017

Trial Date: Not yet set

22
 23
 24
 25
 26
 27
 28

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF CONTENTS ..... i

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ..... ii

INTEREST OF AMICI CURIAE ..... 1

INTRODUCTION ..... 1

ARGUMENT ..... 3

    I.    Our Federalism Protects the States from Becoming Arms of the Federal Government. .... 3

    II.   The Executive Order Threatens to Upset Our Federalism. .... 6

        A. The Executive Order Threatens to Impose Retroactive
          Conditions on Federal Funds Already Granted to the States..... 6

        B. The Executive Order Threatens to Coerce State and Local Governments Into Enforcing Federal Immigration Law ..... 8

CONCLUSION..... 11

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Cases	Page(s)
Alden v. Maine , 527 U.S. 706 (1999) .....	6
Bond v. United States , 564 U.S. 211 (2011) .....	6
Galarza v. Szalczyk , 745 F.3d 634 (3d Cir. 2014) .....	7
Garcia v. San Antonio Metro. Transit Auth. , 469 U.S. 528 (1985) .....	3
Gibbons v. Ogden , 22 U.S. (9 Wheat.) 1 (1824) .....	4
Gregory v. Ashcroft , 501 U.S. 452 (1991) .....	5
McCulloch v. Maryland , 17 U.S. (4 Wheat.) 316 (1819) .....	3
Nat’l Fed’n of Indep. Bus. v. Sebelius , 567 U.S. 519, 132 S. Ct. 2566 (2012) .....	passim
New York v. United States , 505 U.S. 144 (1992) .....	passim
Pennhurst State Sch. &amp; Hosp. v. Halderman , 451 U.S. 1 (1981) .....	4, 6, 8
Printz v. United States , 521 U.S. 898 (1997) .....	passim
Reno v. Condon , 528 U.S. 141 (2000) .....	3
South Dakota v. Dole , 483 U.S. 203 (1987) .....	7, 8, 9, 11
Steward Machine Co. v. Davis , 301 U.S. 548 (1937) .....	8
United States v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. , 315 U.S. 289 (1942) .....	9
United States v. Butler , 297 U.S. 1 (1936) .....	1

1 Other Authorities	Page(s)
2 8 U.S.C. § 1373.....	passim
3 Congressional Budget Office, Federal Grants to State and Local Governments, (Mar. 2013) .....	9
4 Executive Order No. 13,768, 82 Fed. Reg. 8799 (January 25, 2017) .....	passim
5 Mem. from Michael E. Horowitz, Inspector Gen., to Karol V. Mason, 6 Assistant Att’y Gen., Office of Justice Programs, Department of Justice, Referral of Allegations of Potential Violations of 8 U.S.C. 7 § 1373 by Grant Recipients (May 31, 2016) .....	2, 9
8 Office of Management and Budget, Analytical Perspectives, Budget of the U.S. Government Fiscal Year 2017 .....	9
9 THE FEDERALIST No. 15 .....	3
10 THE FEDERALIST No. 39 .....	3
11 U.S. Const. Amend. X .....	4
12 U.S. Const. Art. I, § 1 .....	5

13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

INTEREST OF AMICI CURIAE

Amici are law professors and scholars in constitutional law, including those who have taught, written, and spoken on the topics of Federalism, the Federal Government’s spending power, and the Tenth Amendment. Amici’s interest in this litigation is to offer their views regarding the principles that inform whether Executive Order No. 13,768, 82 Fed. Reg. 8799 (Jan. 25, 2017) (the “Executive Order” or the “Order”) complies with constitutional limits on the Federal Government’s ability to compel State and local Governments to adopt or administer federal law.

INTRODUCTION

The Constitution prohibits the Federal Government from compelling State and local officials to enforce federal law. Printz v. United States, 521 U.S. 898, 925 (1997). So too does it prohibit the Federal Government from wielding its spending power to achieve the same result by coercion. Nat’l Fed’n of Indep. Bus. v. Sebelius (“NFIB”), 567 U.S. 519, 132 S. Ct. 2566 (2012); cf. United States v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1, 75 (1936) (spending power cannot be used as an “instrument for total subversion of the governmental powers reserved to the individual states”). Simply put, “[t]he Federal Government may not compel the States to implement, by legislation or executive action, federal regulatory programs.” Printz, 521 U.S. at 925.

That cornerstone of Our Federalism is at stake here. Given its broadest reach, the Executive Order would leave certain State and local governments at risk of losing all “Federal grants.” § 9(a). The targeted jurisdictions are those that “willfully refuse to comply with 8 U.S.C. § 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions),” id., with § 1373 in turn forbidding State and local governments from restricting distribution of information regarding individuals’ citizenship or immigration status to the Federal Government. 8 U.S.C. § 1373(a) (“[A] Federal, State, or local government entity or official may not prohibit, or in any way restrict, any government entity or official from sending to, or receiving from, the Immigration and Naturalization Service information regarding the citizenship or immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of any individual.”). The Executive Order may go

1 further still and target for defunding those jurisdictions that refuse to serve as federal
2 detention facilities, either because the Executive Order instructs that such jurisdictions
3 qualify as “sanctuary jurisdictions,” § 9(b), or because the executive branch considers such
4 jurisdictions to be in violation of § 1373 itself, see Mem. from Michael E. Horowitz,
5 Inspector Gen., to Karol V. Mason, Assistant Att’y Gen., Office of Justice Programs,
6 Department of Justice, Referral of Allegations of Potential Violations of 8 U.S.C. § 1373
7 by Grant Recipients, at p. 8 (May 31, 2016), <https://oig.justice.gov/reports/2016/1607.pdf>
8 (“Horowitz Memo”) (stating that § 1373 may prohibit certain State and local policies 9 against honoring detainer requests).

10       If the Executive Order conditions all federal funds on compliance with § 1373 or 11 civil detention requests by the Federal Government, it transgresses basic limits on the 12 power of the Federal Government. First, if applied to federal funds already promised to 13 State and local governments, the Executive Order would impermissibly impose new,
14 previously unstated conditions. That alone is fatal: any condition on federal funds must be 15 unambiguous and not retroactive to be valid. Second, the Executive Order would give 16 State and local jurisdictions the very ultimatum that would be unconstitutional if made by 17 Congress in the first instance—submit, or opt-out and lose all federal grants, grants funded
18 in part by the federal tax obligations of the States’ own citizens. That “choice” is no
19 choice at all. It presents the exact kind of economic coercion that risks turning States into 20 arms of the Federal Government. If the President’s Executive Order requires State and 21 local governments to comply with federal detainer requests—at their own political and 22 economic cost and on pain of losing all federal grants—the assault to Our Federalism is 23 even more apparent. The Federal Government has no authority to conscript State and local 24 police to enforce federal immigration law. It certainly cannot do so by giving States a 25 supposed choice that they cannot refuse.

ARGUMENT

I. Our Federalism Protects States from Becoming Arms of the Federal Government.

Under our system of Federalism, the States possess their own sovereign power—and their own authority and accountability to the people—and are not mere arms of the Federal Government. That means the Federal Government lacks absolute power to rule upon and through the States. The Framers considered and rejected such a form of government, see Printz, 521 U.S. at 919-920, understanding that “the only proper objects of government” are “the citizens” themselves, THE FEDERALIST No. 15, p. 109 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). The Framers’ choice ensured that States are not subject to the Federal Government’s command: “[T]he local or municipal authorities form distinct and independent portions of the supremacy, no more subject, within their respective spheres, to the general authority than the general authority is subject to them, within its own sphere.” THE FEDERALIST No. 39, at 245. Thus, “[i]t is an essential attribute of the States’ retained sovereignty that they remain independent and autonomous within their proper sphere of authority.” Printz, 521 U.S. at 928.<sup>1</sup>

The Constitution embodies the Framers’ choice for the States to retain some political independence, or a “residuary and inviolable sovereignty,” distinct from the Federal Government. THE FEDERALIST NO. 39, p. 245. Most fundamentally, as Chief Justice Marshall recognized in McCulloch v. Maryland, the national government (whatever its powers) is “acknowledged by all” to be limited. 17 U.S. (4 Wheat.) 316, 405 (1819). The Constitution grants the Federal Government only enumerated powers, itself a “limitation of powers because ‘the enumeration presupposes something not enumerated.’”

---

<sup>1</sup> Of course, the Federal Government may “subject state governments to generally applicable laws,” meaning “the same legislation applicable to private parties.” New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 160 (1992); see also, e.g., Garcia v. San Antonio Metro. Transit Auth., 469 U.S. 528, 554 (1985). But it may not “require the States in their sovereign capacity to regulate their own citizens.” Reno v. Condon, 528 U.S. 141, 151 (2000).

1 NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2577 (quoting Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. (9 Wheat.) 1, 195 (1824);
2 alteration omitted)). The “police power,” i.e., the “general power of governing,” is
3 residual and “possessed by the States, [] not by the Federal Government.” NFIB, 132 S.
4 Ct. at 2578. The Tenth Amendment makes this explicit: “The powers not delegated to the 5 United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the 6 States respectively, or to the people.” U.S. Const. Amend. X.<sup>2</sup>

7         Given this structure of Federalism, the Constitution prohibits the Federal 8 Government from commandeering state legislatures or executive officers into service of 9 federal law or the national political agenda. “[T]he Federal Government may not compel
10 the States to implement, by legislation or executive action, federal regulatory programs.”
11 Printz, 521 U.S. at 925. That is no less true where the Constitution grants the Federal 12 Government power to enact and enforce such programs itself. Even then, the Federal 13 Government cannot force the States “to govern according to Congress’s instructions,” New 14 York, 505 U.S. at 162, or, indeed, according to the President’s edict, lest “the two-
15 government system established by the Framers . . . give way to a system that vests power
16 in one central government,” NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602. Nor can the Federal Government
17 achieve the same result by economic coercion. Although it may induce the States to accept 18 federal policy by conditioning the receipt of federal funds on such cooperation, the Federal 19 Government may not “cross[] the line distinguishing encouragement from coercion.” New 20 York, 505 U.S. at 175. Rather, the States must be free to determine whether it is worth it to 21 accept federal policy—and the fiscal and political costs that may come with it—in 22 exchange for federal funds. See Pennhurst State Sch. & Hosp. v. Halderman, 451 U.S. 1, 23 17 (1981) (“[L]egislation enacted pursuant to the spending power is much in the nature of
24 a contract: in return for federal funds, the States agree to comply with federally imposed 25 conditions.”).

26 _____
27 <sup>2</sup> Local governments are treated like State Governments for purposes of the Federalism
28 principles expressly guaranteed by the Tenth Amendment. See Printz, 521 U.S. at 931 n.15.

1           Despite these basic precepts of Our Federalism, the Federal Government has at 2 times sought to compel the States to adopt federal law as their own. The Supreme Court
3 has struck those efforts down. For instance, in Printz v. United States, the issue was 4 federal legislation that compelled state law enforcement officers to perform federally
5 mandated background checks on handgun purchasers. 521 U.S. at 902. Even if the law
6 served “very important purposes” and imposed only a “minimal and only temporary
7 burden upon state officers,” the Court struck it down as offending the “very principle of 8 separate state sovereignty.” Id. at 931-33. And in National Federation of Independent
9 Business v. Sebelius, seven Justices agreed that the Medicaid Expansion portion of the 10 Affordable Care Act was unconstitutionally coercive because the threatened loss of 11 funding gave the States “no real option but to acquiesce” to increased state Medicaid
12 obligations. NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2605; id. at 2666 (joint op. of Scalia, Kennedy, Thomas,
13 Alito, JJ.) (concluding that the Medicaid Expansion exceeds Congress’s spending power
14 because “the offer of the Medicaid Expansion was one that Congress understood no State 15 could refuse”).<sup>3</sup>

16           The Federalism structure embodied in the Constitution and upheld in these cases
17 and others is no mere formalism. The Supreme Court has repeatedly described it as crucial
18 protection against “the accumulation of excessive power” in the national government,
19 helping to maintain “a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal 20 Government” that, in turn, “will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front.”
21 Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991); see also Printz, 521 U.S. at 921

---

22
23
24 <sup>3</sup> Of course, these cases address acts of Congress (not executive action) because Congress
25 has “[a]ll legislative powers herein granted” by the Constitution, including the authority
26 under the spending clause to attach conditions to federal funds, U.S. Const. Art. I, § 1; id.
27 § 8 cl.1., as explained in the separate amicus brief addressed to the Separation of Powers
28 issues presented by the Executive Order. But these cases nonetheless control here, as they address the limits of the Federal Government’s authority as reflected in the Tenth Amendment and the enumeration of powers delegated to the Federal Government—limits that apply no matter what branch of the Federal Government seeks to act beyond them.

1 (explaining that federalism is “one of the Constitution’s structural protections of liberty”).
 2 The balance of power between the States and the Federal Government “secures to citizens”
 3 the freedoms that “derive from the diffusion of sovereign power.” New York v. United
 4 States, 505 U.S. 144, 181 (1992); Bond v. United States, 564 U.S. 211, 220–21 (2011)
 5 (“Freedom is enhanced by the creation of two governments, not one.” (quoting Alden v.
 6 Maine, 527 U.S. 706, 758 (1999))). “By denying any one government complete
 7 jurisdiction over all the concerns of public life, federalism protects the liberty of the 8 individual from arbitrary power.” Bond, 564 U.S. at 222.

9 II. The Executive Order Threatens to Upset Our Federalism.

10 The Executive Order reflects the President’s judgment that so-called sanctuary
 11 jurisdictions “have caused immeasurable harm to the American people and to the very 12 fabric of our Republic.” § 1. Depending on its reach (and the reach of § 1373, which the 13 Order purports to enforce), it is the Executive Order that poses a threat to our Republic and 14 the dual sovereignty that the Framers sought to enshrine in the Constitution.<sup>4</sup>

15 A. The Executive Order Threatens to Impose Retroactive Conditions on 16 Federal Funds Already Granted to the States.

17 “Th[e] practice of attaching conditions to federal funds greatly increases federal 18 power.” NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2659. For that reason, the Supreme Court has set absolute 19 limits on the practice to protect the States—and by extension individual liberties—from 20 undue expansion of federal power. See id. Among other limits, any condition on federal 21 funding must (i) be unambiguous and (ii) apply only prospectively and not retroactively.
 22 See, e.g., Pennhurst, 451 U.S. at 17 (“[I]f Congress intends to impose a condition on the 23 grant of federal moneys, it must do so unambiguously); id. at 25 (“Though Congress’
 24 power to legislate under the spending power is broad, it does not include surprising
 25 participating States with post acceptance or ‘retroactive’ conditions.”). These limits

26 _____
 27 <sup>4</sup> Amici offer no view of the proper interpretation of the reach of the Executive Order or 28 8 U.S.C. § 1373, either in terms of the funds at stake or the particular conduct required to avoid classification as a “sanctuary jurisdiction.”

1 protect States’ ability to enter federal spending programs “knowingly, cognizant of the 2 consequences of their participation.” South Dakota v. Dole, 483 U.S. 203, 207 (1987)
3 (internal quotation marks omitted).

4 Amici know of no statute that unambiguously links federal funds to compliance
5 with § 1373.<sup>5</sup> Yet, the Executive Order requires the Attorney General and the Secretary of 6 Homeland Security to “ensure” that so-called sanctuary jurisdictions that violate § 1373
7 are ineligible to “receive Federal grants”:

8 The Attorney General and the Secretary, in their discretion and to the 9 extent consistent with law, shall ensure that jurisdictions that willfully
10 refuse to comply with 8 U.S.C. 1373 (sanctuary jurisdictions) are not eligible to receive Federal grants, except as deemed necessary for law enforcement purposes by the Attorney General or the Secretary.

11 § 9(a). Likewise, while the Executive Order indicates that jurisdictions that fail to honor
12 civil detainer requests may also qualify as sanctuary jurisdictions at risk of defunding,

13 § 9(b), Amici know of no statute that unambiguously requires State and local governments
14 to comply with such requests in exchange for federal funds. Section 1373 itself certainly 15 does not establish any such condition, as it addresses the information-sharing obligations
16 of State and local governments (not any detention obligations) and does not purport to 17 condition any federal funds on compliance with those obligations.<sup>6</sup>

18 If the Executive Order does as it says—that is, if it puts all federal funds at risk,
19 including those already accepted by State and local governments, whether for a
20 jurisdiction’s noncompliance with § 1373 or its unwillingness to act as a federal detention
21

---

22 <sup>5</sup> The State Criminal Alien Assistance Program (“SCAAP”) and Edward Byrne Memorial
23 Justice Assistance Grant Program (“JAG”) grants have been interpreted by the executive 24 branch to require compliance with § 1373 based on the statutory requirement that the jurisdiction comply with “all applicable federal laws.” But with neither grant did Congress itself explicitly require compliance with § 1373.

25 <sup>6</sup> Indeed, prior to the Executive Order, the Federal Government’s position was that
26 agreement to detain individuals upon the Federal Government’s request was “voluntary.”
D.I. 1 (Santa Clara Complaint, Case No. 3:17-cv-00574) ¶ 54 (stating that ICE responded 27 in a public exchange of letters that civil detainees are “requests”); see also Galarza v.
28 Szalczyk, 745 F.3d 634 (3d Cir. 2014) (holding that to require States and localities to detain prisoners pursuant to federal immigration detainer requests would run afoul of the anti-commandeering doctrine).

1 facility—it imposes new, after-the-fact conditions on federal funds that Congress chose not
2 to impose in the first instance. Aside from obvious Separation of Powers problems, see
3 supra at 5 n.3, that would transgress the basic rule that the spending power “does not
4 include surprising participating States with post acceptance or ‘retroactive’ conditions” on 5 funds already appropriated to them. Pennhurst, 451 U.S. at 25. The Federal Government
6 cannot force new conditions down the throats of State and local governments. And it
7 certainly cannot do so in an effort to brandish a new and more intimidating “weapon” for 8 pressuring State and local governments to assist in the enforcement of federal immigration
9 law. See D.I. 36-2 (Harris Decl., Case No. 3:17-cv-00574, Ex. B (Tr. of Feb. 5, 2017
10 interview of President Donald J. Trump)) (characterizing defunding as a “weapon” that can 11 be wielded to deprive sanctuary jurisdictions of “the money they need to properly operate 12 as a city or a state”).

13 B. The Executive Order Threatens to Coerce State and Local Governments
14 Into Enforcing Federal Immigration Law.

15 The Executive Order also threatens to breach the line that “distinguish[es]
16 encouragement from coercion.” New York, 505 U.S. at 175. If the Executive Order puts 17 all federal funds at stake, it gives States no choice but to comply. The specter of such 18 absolute defunding is a far cry from the modest threat of foregone highway funds in South
19 Dakota v. Dole. 483 U.S. at 205. There, the Supreme Court held that Congress’s
20 conditioning of less than one percent of a State’s budget on its adoption of the federal 21 minimum drinking age amounted at most to “mild encouragement” for the State to adopt
22 federal policy as its own and was not “so coercive as to pass the point at which ‘pressure
23 turns into compulsion.’” Id. at 211 (quoting Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548, 24 590 (1937)); see NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2604 (“It is easy to see how the Dole Court could
25 conclude that the threatened loss of less than half of one percent of South Dakota's budget
26 left that State with a prerogative to reject Congress’s desired policy, not merely in theory
27 but in fact.” (internal quotation marks omitted)). Indeed, if the Executive Order threatens 28 all federal funds, then even the Medicaid Expansion piece of the Affordable Care Act at

1 issue in NFIB seems modest by comparison.<sup>7</sup> That threatened the States with loss of all
 2 Medicaid funds—a subset of all federal funds—unless the States took on expanded
 3 Medicaid obligations. Seven Justices agreed in NFIB that the Medicaid expansion law
 4 amounted to “economic dragooning that leaves the States with no real option but to 5 acquiesce.” 132 S. Ct. at 2605; id. at 2666 (joint op. of Scalia, Kennedy, Thomas, Alito,
 6 JJ.). A condition imposed on all federal funds would be economically coercive for the 7 same reason—the offer is one that no State or local government could refuse.<sup>8</sup>

8 The pernicious consequences of such coercion are perhaps most apparent if 9 classification as a “sanctuary jurisdiction”—and thus potential defunding—can be 10 triggered by a State or local government’s refusal to detain individuals upon the Federal 11 Government’s request. Cf. § 9(b) (seemingly equating a “sanctuary jurisdiction” as one
 12 that fails to honor detainer requests); Horowitz Memo at 8 (suggesting that certain policies
 13 against honoring detainer requests may operate to “restrict cooperation with ICE in all
 14 respects” and thus “be inconsistent with and prohibited by Section 1373”). Jurisdictions
 15 like the County of Santa Clara and the City of San Francisco have determined that they 16 cannot perform their own governmental functions—such as protecting public safety and 17 welfare—and also permit their law enforcement officers to serve as de facto federal

18
 19 _____
 20 <sup>7</sup> By comparison, different economic analyses estimate that 25 percent to 31.3 percent of 21 all state and local spending comes from federal grants. See, e.g., Congressional Budget
 22 Office, Federal Grants to State and Local Governments, p. 1 (Mar. 2013), available at,
 23 <https://www.cbo.gov/sites/default/files/113th-congress-2013-2014/reports/03-05-13federalgrantsonecol.pdf>; Office of Management and Budget, Analytical Perspectives,
 Budget of the U.S. Government Fiscal Year 2017, p. 270, available at https://obama

24 <sup>8</sup> The County previously participated in both the SCAAP and JAG programs. See D.I. 26
 25 (Case No. 3:17-cv-00574) at 6 n.5. But after the executive branch issued guidance linking 26 the two programs to compliance with § 1373, the County opted-out, deciding not to accept 27 SCAAP and JAG funds to “retain its full discretion in this policy area.” Id. Assuming the 28 executive branch’s guidance was permissible (a question Amici take no position on), the kind of choice that the County made is exactly what Dole requires at a minimum and what the Executive Order threatens to destroy depending on the breadth of the funds it puts at stake. See United States v. Bethlehem Steel Corp., 315 U.S. 289, 362-27 (1942) (Frankfurter, J., dissenting) (“[T]he courts generally refuse to lend themselves to the enforcement of a ‘bargain’ in which one party has unjustly taken advantage of the economic necessities of the other.”).

1 immigration agents. See D.I. 1 (Santa Clara Compl., Case No. 3:17-cv-00574) ¶ 59, D.I.
2 20 (San Fran. Amd. Compl., Case No. 3:17-cv-00485) ¶ 3 (alleging that complying with
3 voluntary detainer requests would compromise local law enforcement by undermining trust
4 between officers and local communities). The President can no more countermand that
5 determination and require state officers to detain individuals for the Federal Government
6 than Congress could force state law enforcement officers to perform background checks on 7 would-be handgun purchasers in Printz. There, as here, “[t]he power of the Federal 8 Government would be augmented immeasurably if it were able to impress into its 9 service—and at no cost to itself—the police officers of the 50 States.” 521 U.S. at 922.
10 And there, as here, the augmentation of power to the Federal Government not only upsets
11 the balance between federal and state governments, but also threatens to blur the very lines
12 between the two, undermining the accountability of both. As Justice Scalia explained in 13 Printz:

14           By forcing state governments to absorb the financial burden of 15           implementing a federal regulatory program, Members of Congress can 16           take credit for “solving” problems without having to ask their 17           constituents to pay for the solutions with higher federal taxes. And 18           even when the States are not forced to absorb the costs of implementing 19           a federal program, they are still put in the position of taking the blame
20           for its burdensomeness and for its defects.

21 Id. at 830; see also NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602–03. Indeed, the intrusion posed by the 22 Executive Order is likely worse than in Printz: the financial burden is greater and law
23 enforcement officers may have to detain individuals for the Federal Government, not just 24 stand between a potential gun purchaser and immediate possession of his gun.

25           The Federal Government cannot foist the political and financial costs of its
26 immigration policies onto State and local governments, whether by direct commandeering
27 or by economic coercion. Here, the Executive Order threatens to coerce subnational 28 governments into service as federal immigration agencies, as the apparent costs of any other option are too catastrophic to say no. The potential result would be disastrous to Our Federalism: “the two-government system established by the Framers would give way to a system that vests power in one central government, and individual liberty would suffer.”

1 NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2602. Indeed, one need not even agree with every aspect of Printz or 2 other “New Federalism” decisions of the Supreme Court to understand that their basic
3 meaning is to rein in the kind of incursion by the Federal Government on States’ political
4 independence that would exist if the Executive Order threatens absolute defunding of State
5 and local governments that refuse to become agents of federal immigration enforcement.

6 Such coercion is alone fatal. But if the Executive Order reaches all “Federal 7 grants,” it is illegitimate for another reason too. Conditions on federal funds are legitimate
8 only if they “relate[] to the federal interest in particular national projects or programs.”
9 NFIB, 132 S. Ct. at 2659; Dole, 483 U.S. at 213 (O’Connor, J., dissenting) (“We have
10 repeatedly said that Congress may condition grants under the spending power only in ways
11 reasonably related to the purpose of the federal program.”). Not all “Federal grants” that 12 State and local governments accept from the Federal Government relate to federal 13 immigration policy, much less the information-sharing requirements regarding individuals’
14 citizenship or immigration status of § 1373. The federal highway funds at issue in Dole
15 and the Medicaid funds at issue in NFIB certainly did not. The same reach that would 16 make the Executive Order coercive would also make it overbroad in relation to the federal 17 interest at stake. Either flaw would be fatal.

18 CONCLUSION

19 The Framers chose to diffuse sovereign authority across Federal and State
20 governments “precisely so that we may resist the temptation to concentrate power in one
21 location as an expedient solution to the crisis of the day.” New York, 505 U.S. at 187.
22 Illegal immigration may, in the President’s view, be today’s crisis. But any political 23 solution to that problem cannot violate the autonomy and independence of State and local 24 governments in their spheres of authority.
25
26
27
28

1 March 22, 2017

BARTLIT BECK HERMAN PALENCHAR
& SCOTT LLP

2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

By: /s/ Nevin M. Gewertz

Nevin M. Gewertz
Abby M. Mollen

*Attorneys for Amici Curiae
Constitutional Law Scholars*

Amici Curiae Constitutional Law Scholars

(Institutional Affiliation Listed for Identification Purposes Only)

Raquel Aldana, McGeorge School of Law, University of the Pacific

Michelle Wilde Anderson, Stanford Law School

Hadar Aviram, University of California Hastings College of the Law

W. David Ball, Santa Clara School of Law

Lenni B. Benson, New York Law School

Gabriel J. Chin, University of California, Davis School of Law

Ingrid V. Eagly, University of California Los Angeles School of Law

William H.D. Fernholz, University of California Berkeley School of Law

Katherine J. Florey, University of California Davis School of Law

Gerald E. Frug, Harvard Law School

Bill Ong Hing, University of San Francisco School of Law

Sanford V. Levinson, University of Texas School of Law

Alison L. LaCroix, University of Chicago Law School

Karl Manheim, Loyola Law School, Los Angeles

Maya Manian, University of San Francisco School of Law

- 1 Hiroshi Motomura, University of California Los Angeles School of Law
- 2 James Gray Pope, Rutgers Law School
- 3 Darien Shanske, University of California Davis School of Law
- 4 Fred Smith, Jr., University of California Berkeley School of Law
- 5 Ilya Somin, George Mason University, Antonin Scalia Law School
- 6 Elissa Steglich, University of Texas School of Law
- 7 Rose Cuison-Villazor, University of California Davis School of Law
- 8 Michael Vitiello, McGeorge School of Law, University of the Pacific
- 9 Alexander “Sasha” Volokh, Emory University School of Law
- 10 Keith Whittington, Princeton University
- 11 Michael J. Wishnie, Yale Law School
- 12 Ernest Young, Duke University School of Law

13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA,

Case No. 3:17-cv-00574-WHO

Plaintiff,

v.

[PROPOSED] ORDER

DONALD J. TRUMP, President of the
United States of America, JOHN F.
KELLY, in his official capacity as
Secretary of the United States Department
of Homeland Security, JEFFERSON B.
SESSIONS, in his official capacity as
Attorney General of the United States,
JOHN MICHAEL "MICK"
MULVANEY, in his official capacity as
Director of the Office of Management and
Budget, and DOES 1-50,

Date: April 5, 2017
Time: 2:00 pm
Dep't: Courtroom 2
Judge: Hon. William H. Orrick

Date Filed: March 22, 2017

Trial Date: Not yet set

Defendants.

Good cause appearing, the Motion of Amici Curiae Constitutional Law Scholars
Raquel Aldana, Michelle Wilde Anderson, Hadar Aviram, W. David Ball, Lenni B.
Benson, Gabriel J. Chin, Ingrid V. Eagly, William H.D. Fernholz, Katherine J. Florey,
Gerald E. Frug, Bill Ong Hing, Alison L. LaCroix, Sanford V. Levinson, Karl Manheim,
Maya Manian, Hiroshi Motomura, James Gray Pope, Darien Shanske, Fred Smith, Jr., Ilya
Somin, Elissa Steglich, Rose Cuison-Villazor, Michael Vitiello, Alexander "Sasha" Volokh, Keith Whittington, Michael J. Wishnie, and Ernest Young for leave to file an amicus brief in support of Plaintiff's Motion for Preliminary Injunction is hereby GRANTED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

March __, 2017

Hon. William H. Orrick
United States Chief District Judge
Northern District of California