Client feedback published by Chambers included the following:

"It is absolutely the best firm I've worked with – they are decisive, responsive, incredibly experienced and they groom their lawyers to be leaders. Their client service is excellent: they are efficient and always come to the client with solutions to complex problems."

The firm "assembles top-notch teams of brilliant, experienced professionals and collaborates with us to develop smart and creative litigation strategies."

"They're very flexible and able to react very quickly to new developments. They observe, orient, decide and act faster than the opponents and that usually puts the client in a better position to win. Bartlit Beck is by far the best litigation shop I have dealt with."

Chambers also recognized the following Bartlit Beck attorneys:

Sources say that watching Philip Beck "conduct a cross-examination is a true professional honor." He has an "outstanding reputation" for his expert handling of trial and appellate disputes, including those involving high-stakes product liability claims. Phil is listed as a "Star Individual" in the USA Trial Lawyers category.

Adam Hoeflich maintains an excellent reputation for his expertise in commercial litigation, including products liability and market manipulation disputes. Sources remark: "He has impeccable judgment and he's the guy you want advising you on difficult decisions."

According to clients, Rebecca Weinstein Bacon is a "rising star with a high-level skillset" who is "so good in front of a jury, and also engages extremely well with business and clients." She is regularly called on by clients in the pharmaceutical sector to handle major product liability litigation.

Fred Bartlit offers a wealth of experience representing large corporations in complex disputes. He is noted for his capabilities as a trial lawyer.

Clients noted that Robert Morrill "has a great way of understanding the key components of each deal and negotiating solutions" and commend his "great guidance."

James Palenchar is considered to be an "outstanding lawyer" and a "top practitioner" in the corporate sphere. He possesses long-standing experience in governance issues and SEC regulatory matters, in particular.

Thomas Stephens is experienced at advising on private equity and SEC matters. Clients value his technical skills and strategic expertise when advising on corporate mandates.
