Kat Hacker is a trial lawyer with significant courtroom experience in high-stakes cases in state and federal court. Kat has spent over 100 days in trial, including trials followed closely by news outlets around the world. Kat has delivered an opening statement with billions of dollars at stake, cross-examined witnesses including one that led to a New York Times headline-grabbing mid-trial discovery, and argued motions and appeals across the country including recently in the New Hampshire Supreme Court.

Kat has also handled a number of intellectual property cases. For example, Kat second-chaired a patent trial for Amazon about whether Amazon should be liable for patent infringement when third-party sellers offer and sell infringing products on Amazon.com. The jury returned a complete defense verdict that was upheld on appeal. Kat also served as co-lead counsel for Wowza Media Systems in a patent infringement case about video compression. The plaintiff tried to get more than two dozen cases consolidated into multidistrict litigation. Despite Wowza's small size compared to other defendants like Google, Apple, and Netflix, the defendants entrusted the argument in front of the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation to Wowza's team. After a victory where the Panel refused to consolidate the cases, Wowza settled, escaping the case within just five months of it being filed.

Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. President and Fellows of Harvard College (D. Mass.)

Trial counsel in three-week race discrimination case against Harvard for its admissions practices that discriminate against Asian-American applicants.

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission v. Texas Roadhouse (D. Mass.)

Trial counsel for landmark pattern or practice age discrimination claim brought by EEOC against national restaurant chain. After three-week jury trial in January 2017, case ended in a mistrial because jury was deadlocked after deliberating for one week. Case settled very favorably before retrial.

Confidential Arbitration (AAA)

Trial counsel for oil and gas exploration and production company in commercial and state securities law dispute. Claimant sought more than $25 million. After a two-week arbitration hearing, the arbitration issued a favorable decision on every claim and ordered the claimant to pay our client's attorneys' fees.

Milo & Gabby, LLC v. Amazon.com, Inc. (W.D. Wash. and Fed. Cir.)

Trial and appellate counsel for Amazon.com in a patent infringement suit. Secured complete defense verdict for Amazon in a jury trial concerning whether Amazon is liable for patent infringement when third-party sellers offer and sell infringing products on Amazon.com. Milo and Gabby appealed both the jury's verdict on patent infringement and the judge's summary judgment decision on copyright infringement. The Federal Circuit affirmed the case in its entirety.

Core-Mark International, Inc. et al. v. Sonitrol Corp. (Colo. Dist. Ct. and Colo. Ct. App.)

Trial and appellate counsel for Sonitrol, former subsidiary of Tyco International, in one-week damages-only retrial. Before Bartlit Beck got involved, a previous jury found Sonitrol willfully and wantonly breached its burglar-alarm monitoring contract with Core-Mark. Sonitrol's breach stemmed from its failure to detect three burglars in Core-Mark's warehouse, which allowed the burglars to loot the warehouse for three hours. Eventually, one of the burglars lit two fires that burned for five days and destroyed the entire warehouse. Core-Mark claimed damages for both the theft and arson, which totaled over $23 million in damages and climbed to over $50 million with pre-judgment interest. Despite the fact that the jury in the previous trial had given Core-Mark all the damages they asked for and despite the fact that the court precluded Sonitrol from calling a damages expert, the jury in the retrial awarded Core-Mark only $2.75 million in theft-related damages, the damages number Sonitrol sponsored. The jury awarded no fire-related damages. The Colorado Court of Appeal affirmed the jury's verdict.
